“Wade Davis has a gift for saying the unsayable. He’s a fearless explorer in the intellectual world, as in the physical. His refusal to embrace conventional wisdom on climate change, for example, and instead think through the issue for himself, is a model of independent thinking. Even when I disagree with Wade, as with some of his bleak comments about the United States, I’m grateful for his voice. We usually live on the surface of ideas when we talk about issues such as war and racism; Wade takes us far deeper.”

DAVID IGNATIUS, Washington Post foreign affairs columnist

“These deeply felt essays swim wide oceans of diverse culture and thought. With wisdom and surefooted research, Davis shows us how understanding other ways of being can open the gates of justice.”

GRETEL EHRLICH, author of The Solace of Open Spaces and Unsolaced

“Wade Davis is a master of the essay form, bringing a life of exploration, travel, reflection, and experience together in a bracing synthesis... The essay on climate change is simply the best thing I’ve read on the subject.”

MICHAEL IGNATIEFF, author of On Consolation

“Terrific, eloquent, beautifully written and synthesized history. Your eye lands on the terrors with cold fury.”

JANN WENNER, founder of Rolling Stone

“Davis is in a league of his own. It’s an exhilarating, magisterial essay.”

AMOL RAJAN, BBC media editor, citation for “The Unraveling of America,” first runner-up, Bertrand Russell Prize

“Wade Davis has the ability to look beneath the surface of what he observes, offering insights and interpretations that are invariably inspiring and bold. The breadth of his knowledge and the range of his curiosity are wondrous.”

ANDREW WEIL, bestselling author

WADE DAVIS

“Wade Davis is a true wayfinder, and these essays offer new insight into his visionary approach to culture, landscape, and the planet he loves as fiercely as any writer working today.”

JOHN VAILLANT, author of Fire Weather

NEW AND SELECTED ESSAYS

GREYSTONE

A TIMELY AND PROVOCATIVE COLLECTION FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST THINKERS OF OUR TIME

THE ESSAYS in this collection came about during the unhurried months when one who had traveled incessantly was obliged to stay still, even as events flared on all sides in a world that never stops moving. Addressing themes from war and race to mountains, plants, climate, exploration, the promise of youth, and the essence of the sacred, Wade Davis sees the world through an anthropological lens, revealing with rare insight what lies beneath the surface of things, allowing us to see, and to seek, the wisdom of the middle way, a perspective of promise and hope that all of the essays in this collection aspire to convey.

Among the most notable is “The Unraveling of America,” first published in Rolling Stone, where it attracted five million readers, generating 362 million social media impressions and sparking media interest in twenty-three nations while becoming one of the most influential essays of the era.
